The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author details the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both manual data entry and the use of specialized software tools. The goal is to ensure that the data is both accurate and easy to interpret.

The third part of the document provides a detailed breakdown of the results. It shows that there is a clear trend in the data, which is consistent with the initial hypothesis. The author also discusses the limitations of the study and suggests areas for future research.

Finally, the document concludes with a summary of the key findings. It reiterates that the data is reliable and that the conclusions drawn are well-supported. The author expresses confidence in the results and hopes that they will be helpful to others in the field.

The Intellectual Adventure

of Ancient Man

intro-describes causality (p. 23f), / their relationship man vs natural world.

Primitive thought naturally recognized the relationship of cause + effect, but it cannot recognize our (modern) view of an impersonal, mechanical, and ^{lawlike} functioning of causality...
Since the phenomenal world is a ^{Thought} confronting early man, he does not expect to find an impersonal law regulating a process.
He looks for a purposeful will committing an act. If the rivers refuse to rise, it is not suggested that the lack of rainfalls or distant mountains adequately explain the calamity... the river or the gods intend to convey something to the people.
None better answers than ours, which only scoot the question over.
